THE PACIFIC
Commercial Advertiser.
SATURDAY, MARCH 25.
(From the Chicago Times, Feb. 8.) A Pair of Kalakaua's Subjects.
Among the guests who arrived at the Palmer house on yesterday afternoon, over from the Pacific coast, were Maj. G. W. MacFarlane and Mr. J. W. Pfleger, from Honolulu, Sandwich islands. Before they had time to divest themselves of their traveling costumes, a Times reporter's card was laid on the table and the reporter went forth that he should be admitted. He found the gentlemen sans coat, sans vest, sans collar, and busily engaged in directing the distribution of innumerable trunks and packages to their respective families and friends. The reporter was disconcerted though they had been arrayed in reception style.
"Is this Maj. MacFarlane?" asked the reporter, grasping the outstretched hand of a tall, sandy-haired and full-bearded man of perhaps 45 years of age.
"No; I am Mr. Pfleger. This is Maj. Mac-Farlane," and a trim-built, medium-size gentleman of 30, a decided brunette, with mustache and side whiskers, and a rich complexion that indicated that it had been frequently kissed by tropical suns, advanced smilingly and extended a genial welcome. When all were seated, the reporter inquired of Mr. Pfleger what news he had to communicate from Honolulu and the South sea.
"We have just arrived here and are eight days out from San Francisco, having been snowed in three days at Elcho. We left the Pacific coast on Sunday, a week ago, struck the coast on Monday night, and remained stationary till Thursday. I arrived at San Francisco on the steamship City of Melbourne, eight days out from Honolulu, and just prior to sighting land a heavy snow-storm swept over the coast, so that the only sight of the Golden Gate clad in a mantle of white was presented."
"How long have you resided in Honolulu?" inquired the reporter.
"Since 1852, with the exception of two or three years spent in making a cruise to Kamtschatka in 1862-5."
"In what business are you engaged?"
"I am vice consul for Russia at Honolulu, and also a member of the firm of H. Hack-feld & Co., commission merchants, agents for the planters and also for the Pacific Mail company's line of steamships."
"Whither are you traveling?"
"I am on my way to Russia, via Germany, and shall be absent about eight months. I leave for Washington to-morrow, to see Judge Allen, Chancellor of our islands, who is there in the interest of the reciprocity treaty which has already passed the senate but lingers in the house. I go there simply to hear the news, and thence to New York to take a passage to Liverpool." Turning to Maj. MacFarlane, The Times representative inquired how long he had been imprisoned by the salt sea waves in the Cannibal islands.
"I was born there."
"Is this your first visit to America?"
"Yes; I have never before been off the islands but twice; once to visit Australia, and once to visit New Zealand."
"What is your business?"
"I am managing clerk for the English house of T. H. Davies & Co., importers and commission merchants, and agents for the planters."
"You see our william guest, King Kalakaua, occasionally, no doubt?"
"Very frequently. He was delighted with his visit to this country, and I often hear him speak of his next visit he intends to visit England. He will go across the American continent by rail if he has his way, and meet some of his old acquaintances. Of course the English government would prefer to have him go by way of Panama, but I doubt if he consents."
"How many inhabitants are there on your group of islands?"
"About 50,000 natives and 10,000 foreigners.
We have a line of splendid steamships touching at Honolulu once a month, and the firm of H. Hack-feld & Co. are the agents."
"Are you going to Europe?"
"No; I go to Washington, thence to New York, and shall then recross the continent and sail from San Francisco for home."
Foreign Summary.
Hon. Reverdy Johnson had his life insured for $100,000.
The total consumption of sugar in the United States for the year 1875 is estimated at 773,000 tons.
Justice Pitman decides that "a boy 12 years old, in the present state of education, is qualified to testify as a witness." There is a man in Indiana who takes 32 newspapers and you might as well try to ride whirlwind on a sidesaddle as to attempt to impose upon that man.
Prove it.—The vital statistics of this country prove that a woman spends more time to hide a pimple on her forehead than she will to take care of seven children.
The culture in Georgia.—The culture is now said to be gaining ground in Georgia so rapidly that it bids fair to become one of the settled industries of that State.
The manufacturers at Fall River, Mass., are now exporting prints to the English market; 30,000 pieces have been forwarded all ready, and arrangements are being made for the regular sale of American prints in the London market.
At the mint at Carson, Nevada, a set of scales has been set up by which the difference between two apparently equal human hairs can be readily ascertained, and a difference in weight of a millionth of a grain can be measured.
CHERFUL.—This is the cheerful state of affairs which at present exists between two Illinois lovers: The girl was about to marry another young man, when her former lover replenished a sewing-machine he had given her. She responded by suing him for the value of meals eaten at her house, and now he has sued her for the time occupied in courting her.
DOMESTIC INFELICITY.—A man and his wife, who had been married ten years, disagreed and determined to separate. The terms of separation were to be decided by the justice of the arrondissement in which they lived. They were Parisians.
"Have you any children?" said the judge.
"Yes, monsieur." "How many?" "Three." Two boys and a girl, and it is with them lies the difficulty. Madame wishes to have two of them; so do I. "Have you agreed to abide by my decision?" "We have," said both of them.
"Very well, my friends, I condemn you to have another child, so that you may each have two."
When you have obtained that you may return to me." The matter was then adjourned for the time being. Two years afterwards the worthy magistrate, who in the meantime had heard nothing of the husband or wife, met the former. "Ah," said he, "how about the separation?" "Still impossible, Monsieur. Instead of four children we have now five."
THE COSTLINE OF THE PRUSSIAN ARMY.—I know Prussia well, only last summer I wandered over it from the Rhine to the Baltic. Why, so far from Prussia having a cheap army, it is the most expensive army in the world; while ours, considering what it does and it secures to us, is the very cheapest. Taking thousands of her abletbodied men yearly from their ordinary employment to become non-producers, is in itself a vast cost to Prussia. The disturbance of trade and commerce caused by it must be a tremendous sacrifice of money. But this is not all. It is far the most serious expense is the loss incurred by the nation through forced emigration. Prussians, the strong men remember, not the feeble, in order to escape the conscription, leave their country by thousands. They are to be found all over Europe, and in America whole towns are German. Has Mr. Holmes ever estimated what all this outlay amounted to? If not, let him do so, and he will never tell again of a cheap Prussian army.— London Times.
HOW BRIGHAM LOOKS.—We find the following description of Brigham in a Canadian paper. The picture was taken when the Prophet's feelings were not harrowed up: Brigham is a shrewd Yankee born in Vermont, seventy-five years ago, and brought up like Joseph of old, in a carpenter's trade. In person he is rather mean looking. He stands nearly six feet high, broad-shouldered and stocky, with the general physical aspect of a humah bull. His head is of a moderate size, with strong developments of the base and posterior regions of the cranium, and it is by no means lacking in interior breadth. His hair is abundant in growth and abundant in growth and style, into a foretop to the right side, with somewhat of the lop of a sick rooster's comb. The impression received from the care bestowed on the hair is that of an overwhelming vanity, and a desire to appear young. In Brigham Young the lowest type of humanity is depicted in his gorilla-like projecting lower jaw, avarice in his pinched mouth, harshness and ungoddiness in every lineament of his revolting face; and yet many Mormon women say, "What a beautiful and benevolent face he has!" It is among the worst faces we have seen.

LIEUTENANT M. BURE, of the French navy, has made a proposition to the Geographic Society at Paris which has attracted a good deal of interest. He proposes voyages around the world, to last about a year each, for the completion of the education of young men. The cost per student he estimates at about $4,000 (20,- 000 francs), and it is intended that regular scientific instruction shall form a prominent feature in the enterprise. As the corps of instructors will be put into close connection with scientific bodies all over the world, the educational advantages of the project are very evident. The plan has been taken up with vigorous approval at Paris, and seems likely to be carried out. A similar project was advanced two years ago by the American writer of a series of camping out stories, and urged at the time with a good deal of vigor and plausibility. The notion of a "floating college" is by no means so fanciful as it seems at first sight, and, if planned and carried out with wisdom and energy, certainly offers opportunities for the higher education afforded by no stationary school.

THE TWO HEROES SOCIAL OF NEW YORK.—Two persons seen everywhere this winter, and who attract a great deal of attention, are Joaquin Miller and Colonel Nicholas Smith, the husband of Ida Greeley. Colonel Smith is always in attendance on his wife, Joaquin (no one would know him as Mr. Miller) was thought at one time to have come to New York in search of one, but as a fortune-hunter, if that was a part of the programme, he does not seem destined to be a success. He cannot help making straight for the prettiest girl in the room any more than he can help talking very tender poetry out of his eyes when he reaches her side. Colonel Smith is undeniably the handsomest man anywhere. He is gifted also with that wonderful manner which, for the time being, makes the person to whom he is talking, be it man or woman, think him or herself the one object in the world in which or in whose opinions and ideas he is most interested.
It is a picturesque talent, full of that peculiar mixture of originality, elusiveness and honesty which seems to distinguish the natives of the Border States. He says he made up his mind to marry Miss Ida Greeley, if he could get her, before he ever saw her, from the newspaper accounts of her goodness and devotion to her parents.
—Baltimore American.

BISMARCK'S BRANDY.—Scarcely a day passes, said a Frenchman to me, "that Prince Bismarck does not receive a present of some sort. But then he has a manner peculiar to himself when he wishes to have something and doesn't care to pay for it. The last day of the session of the Reichstag he goes to meet the members from Nordhausen, a locality where they manufacture brandy which is said to make the dead speak."
"On l'on fabrique une eau de vie qui fait parler les morts." "Gentlemen, delighted to see you," says he to them with a hearty welcome, inquires about the health of their families, and regrets his inability to visit them at home. "By the by, how goes business? Do the members distill Nordhausen sustain their ancient reputation? I once drank a brandy that came from there of magnificent bouquet and limpidity, the memory of which still clings to me." "Your Excellency," eagerly reply the members, "we hope you will prove to us that we still make the glorious brandy of our ancestors, and the famous brand of Nordhausen has not lost its unrivalled reputation." "Two days after a small barrel of brandy is placed in the cellar of the Prince, and a letter from the leading distillers of Nordhausen begs him to accept this feeble mark of their admiration and sympathy."

RUSSIAN CUSTOMS.—A Belgian hotel-keeper is especially "sweet" on Russian customers.
They are a large, see you, he states; "they dispute not the accounts. One lodged himself at me a Count—He relates. "When he arrived I was not. I returned home from my circle; my wife was all frightened. She cry to me, 'Go speak to the Count Russian; he beat all the waiters—he is in anger—but what an anger!' I ask of what it is the question. One tells me the Count he insist that the waiters take him off his boots. They are brave Belgians; they will not. He strikes them and sends them follies. I had courage, I; I feared me not of him.
I go to his room and say, 'Mr. the Count, I am the proprietor; what will you?' 'Sir,' he say, 'I will thank you pull me off my boots!' My first sentiment is de le alongeuse claque—to give him a smack; but I master myself and say, 'Wait only two minutes, Mr. the Count; I have an order to give.' So I run to my wife, and tell her give me my dress-coat, my gloves grey-pearl, my gilet, my pantaloons black. In two minutes behold me, of great tenue. I go back to the Count; I say to him, 'Only in dress of gala can the proprietor of this hotel take you off your boots, and my faith, I take him them off in one, two! He beat himself, how himself, and I thank me very politely. By and bye, in three weeks, he ask for his bill. I inscribe on it, as extra, 'To taking off Mr. the Count's boots by the proprietor in a dress coat grey-pearl gloves, 100 francs.
He from his eyebrows when he read that, but he not say one word. He pay that addition integrally.
Never he ask me more to serve him as a pullboy. But he come regularly, three, four years de suite, to my hotel, and he always say to me 'Mr., you are a brave—you are all a man holly blue!'"

When a girl crops her front hair and pulls it down over her forehead like a Mexican mustang, and then ties a piece of red velvet around her neck, who can wonder at the number of pale-faced young men that throw away their ambition and pass sleepless nights in trying to raise down on their upper lips?

CHELSEA LAUNDRY.
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING BECOME
Proprietor of this
First-Class Establishment, Is now prepared to execute all orders in his line with neatness and dispatch.
He would also say that he has secured the services of the former employees of the Laundry, who will be an additional guaranty that The Work will be Thoroughly Done!
And no effort on his part will be spared to bring the Laundry in favor of the public generally. Terms moderate.
